Confucius

Confucius begins with the following advice: take pleasure in learning. Stay in touch with distant friends. Do not look for compliments.

He then directs these words of wisdom to young people: Obey your parents and elders. Do not make too many promises, and be sure to keep all promises you do make. Think good thoughts about everyone. Study good manners.

Confucius points out that good people do not become unhappy if their good deeds go unnoticed. Rather, unhappiness comes from not noticing the good deeds of others. He urges leaders to show good moral values in order to gain the respect of their subjects.

Govern the people by regulations, keep order among them by chastisements, and they will flee from you, and lose all self-respect. Govern them by moral force, keep order among them by ritual, and they will keep they will keep their self respect and come to you of their own accord.

Confucius goes on to say that young people should behave with virtue so that their parents do not need to worry about them. He points out that good people consider all aspects of a question, not just the aspect that directly affects them. Finally, he defines knowledge as recognizing what you don't know as well as what you do know.

Confucius states that the most painful things to see are narrow-minded rulers, insecurity, and fake tears. He urges everyone to behave like the good people that they know and to ignore the bad behaviors of others. He advises us to avoid saying things that we do not mean and to be true to our word. Confucius says: "Study in order to learn something, not to impress other people".

SECTION D: ESSAY (10 marks)

Write an essay of about 250 – 300 words on one of the following topics:

- 1. You have passed your entrance examination into one of the prominent universities in Cameroon. Many of your friends do not share in your happiness because they do not like to study in Cameroon. They think that one can only succeed if one goes abroad. Write a speech in which you convince them about studies in Cameroon.
- 2. There is a lot of emphasis on Mother Tongue Education these days. Many schools have instituted the teaching and learning of these languages. What is your stand on this?
- 3. Multi-media centers have been created in many secondary schools in Cameroon. You are the president of the Students' Association and you would like your school to be equipped with these materials and trained teachers. Write a letter to the Minister of Secondary Education to this effect. Your name is NDONGO Nebi and the name of your school is GSS Nso in the Centre Region of Cameroon.

SECTION D: ESSAY (10 marks)

Topic 1: Speech Convincing Friends About Studying in Cameroon

Dear Friends,

Today, I stand before you with great pride after passing my entrance examination into one of the prominent universities in Cameroon. Many of you believe that success is only possible abroad, but I am here to convince you otherwise.

Cameroon offers world-class education at institutions such as the University of Yaoundé and the University of Buea. These universities provide modern facilities, experienced lecturers, and diverse programs tailored to meet the needs of today's global market. Furthermore, studying in Cameroon allows us to remain close to our families, culture, and communities, fostering a sense of belonging and responsibility.

Moreover, the cost of education in Cameroon is significantly lower compared to foreign countries, making it more accessible for students from all backgrounds. Additionally, the government has invested heavily in improving the quality of education through scholarships, research grants, and partnerships with international organizations.

In conclusion, while studying abroad may seem appealing, the opportunities available in Cameroon are just as promising. Let us embrace our local institutions and contribute to the development of our nation. Together, we can achieve greatness right here at home.

Thank you.

Topic 2: Mother Tongue Education

Mother tongue education plays a crucial role in preserving cultural identity and enhancing academic performance. By teaching and learning in our native languages, students can better understand complex concepts and express themselves more confidently.

However, some argue that prioritizing mother tongues over widely spoken languages like English or French might limit future opportunities. To address this concern, schools should adopt bilingual or multilingual approaches, ensuring students develop proficiency in both their mother tongues and international languages.

Ultimately, embracing mother tongue education enriches our cultural heritage while empowering students academically. It is a step toward creating a more inclusive and equitable educational system.

Topic 3: Letter to the Minister of Secondary Education

GSS Nso, Centre Region

Date: [Insert Date]

To:

The Honorable Minister of Secondary Education
Ministry of Secondary Education
Yaoundé, Cameroon

Subject: Request for Multi-Media Centers and Trained Teachers

Dear Minister,

My name is NDONGO Nebi, President of the Students' Association at GSS Nso in the Centre Region. On behalf of our school community, I would like to request the establishment of multi-media centers equipped with modern technology and trained teachers.

In today's digital age, access to technology is essential for effective learning. Multi-media centers will enhance students' understanding of subjects through interactive tools and resources. Additionally, trained teachers will ensure proper utilization of these materials, bridging the gap between traditional and modern teaching methods.

We believe this initiative will significantly improve academic outcomes and prepare students for the challenges of the 21st century. Your support in this endeavor would be greatly appreciated.

Thank you for considering our request. We look forward to your positive response.

Sincerely,

NDONGO Nebi
President, Students' Association
GSS Nso
